STD- VI

A. Answer these questions briefly.

1. Where did Moti Lal live? Where did Kisan Lal live?

Ans:- Moti Lal lived in the hills and valleys, while Kisan Lal lived in a village in the plains of north India.

2. Who cooked the grand feast? Say briefly what was made.

Ans:- The grand feast was cooked by the cooks and ladies of Moti Lal's house. The table was full of delicious food such as rice cooked in saffron, chicken was cooked in a variety of ways. There were vegetables, fruits and sweets which completed the feast.

3. How did Kisan Lal praise the dinner? Did the praise please Moti Lal?

Ans:- Kisan Lal said that the meal was cooked wonderfully but the feasts served in his village were better.

No, this did not please Moti Lal.

4. Why did Moti Lal bite his lips nervously?

Ans:- Moti Lal bit his lips nervously because of Kisan's previous cold remarks about the food. He expected Kisan Lal to praise the food now.

5. How did Moti Lal accept defeat?

Ans:- Moti Lal accepted his defeat silently, thinking that Kisan Lal's village food would be much better than food at his place.

6. Was Kisan Lal happy to see Moti Lal? How do we know?

Ans:- Yes, Kisan Lal was very happy to see his friend Moti Lal. We can say so because he was delighted to see him and asked him to stay for a few days.

7. For what did Moti Lal wait expectantly, but in vain?

Ans:- Moti Lal was eagerly waiting for the great meal at Kisan Lal's house, but a servant served very simple food consisting of rotis, a bowl of curd, salad, dal and a plate of vegetables.

Q 8. How did the food served in the houses of the two friends differ?

Ans:- The food of Moti Lal's house was like the feast of a king, and there were all kinds of dishes which were spicy and oily. Eating this type of food regularly is harmful to health because it can increase the amount of cholesterol and fat in our body and make us sick. On the other hand, Kisan Lal's food was very simple but nutritious and balanced.

B. Read the lines and answer the questions that follow.

1. He summoned his cook and ordered them to cook dinner on a grander scale.

a. What does grander scale imply here?

Ans:- Here the grander scale means much bigger and more expensive than before.

b. Do you think it was necessary? Give me a reason.

Ans:- No, it wasn't necessary to do so, because his friend never asked him to serve food on a grand scale.

2. The grand fare was set before his friend and Moti Lal waited in agonising silence.

For what did Moti Lal wait in agonising silence?

Ans:- Moti Lal waited in agonising silence to hear the words of praise for the food from Kisan Lal .
